A Time of Explosion

It really is a time of “explosion.” Many are right at the brink of understanding what have been mysteries to the soul. As the forward progress continues, understandings that are at this time glimpses of light will explode in the understanding, and forward we will go into an outpouring like this world has never known.

The “identity crisis,” which has been unparalleled, is at a crossroads, and this time, the right path into all the fullness in Me will be chosen, for the pureness of My ways has been taught by My Spirit and the understanding of this life in Me is becoming sure, pure and strong in the manner I have desired for many, many generations.

Those hungry for the soundness of unshakeable truth are leaving the structures of religion, and a shaking of the “man-made” is beginning to take place in a much greater measure. Expect to see the hungry come, and expect some to come back who were shaken off the foundation of soundness that My hands have built. Begin to expect these changes to take place in the midst of other changes I am bringing.

The word is going to begin to increase that “Truth is over here!” and people will come. Many that come will be hand-led by My Spirit, and great will be the peace that will accompany them to this place. Healing will be in this peace.

I have spoken of an emerging from hiddenness. Expect the manifestation of this, for the time has come according to the place on this path into Me that you have come to. I am going to send stewards to sit in the midst of you. Some will be known, some will be unknown, but I know each one. As they come, treat each one as you treat any other son—allow them to take their place in the structure of family I am building.

Allow them to come. Turn none away that I send. Some will be very polished by the hands of My Spirit and will know the Refiner’s fire. Others will come whose lives are quite ragged around the edges, but their hearts have been proven to be Mine. I am gathering sons to come.

Things are shifting. Things are changing within lives. Be ready for what is to come.
