

The Lord's Present-Day Speaking

PT100226B – Feb 26, 2010
The Love You Behold Will Change You

The narrowing in the path that you choose eliminates choices for you and embraces My life in you. Those things you used to brush aside as weaknesses in you will fall away and be left behind on the path that gets narrower and narrower before you. You will note along the way that what once was “life” to you will be as nothing, for My life will be all that you will want to choose.

On this narrower path, it will be less about you and much more about My love and life that you choose, which is My life in you. As you continue on this path, you will find that some desires and delights will have become obsolete—you will not have brought them with you on the narrowing path you have chosen. Your desire for Me will far outweigh these other things.

This narrowing path that you choose is the walk into the fullness of My love and the fullness of My image in you. The love that you behold will change you. The truth that you understand will lift you into My life in you, in ways you cannot imagine. The Presence you will abide in will sustain you and will be an embrace around you.

To move forward into the place in Me that My Son secured for you will only come in this narrowing. It will be a journey into the dimensions of My life in you.

It is the good path you choose, and those who do not choose as you do will not have the depths in Me that are calling to the depths in you. Only by choosing this narrowing path you are walking into will you see My fullness in you. I love you. I so want you here—in My fullness. Don't stop moving forward in Me. You will make it.

This feast of My love I have for you on the way is a many-coursed meal, so dine and dine and dine and feast on My love for you.