Knowing My Joy Is a Joyful Place of Fellowship

There is a deeper joy for those walking into closer and closer fellowship with Me. This is a joy that few have walked in for many generations. It is the joy that comes in knowing Me and walking with Me and freely receiving. It is My joy to give to you all things. It is My joy that you have an inheritance in Me. My greater joy is that through our fellowship, you freely receive.

The joy of My Son was the pleasure of Our fellowship, as well as knowing the joy this brought to Me. My joy was the joy He received. The joy of My Son was in knowing Me and walking in the fullness of My life, whereby all things are received. What He believed is what He received, and He believed all He heard and all He learned—He believed all truth found in Me. The joy of My Son was the fullness of the love that is in Me and the wisdom My truth brings. The joy of My Son was in being a son to Me and walking step by step in Me. My joy in these things was the joy My Son received, and My joy was in Our fellowship, and that He freely received from Me.

I am leading you into this joy on this path of fellowship, and this path is becoming even narrower in Me. The paths many take all around you that do not lead to more of Me are wider and wider, as you see. Even as your path becomes narrower, your joy becomes stronger, and our fellowship grows richer and richer indeed. The path into more of Me gets narrower and the paths away from Me get wider. And there will be many who want off the wide path when they find themselves farther and farther away from Me. The joy you are walking into in Me will be what will bring many back to Me.

There will be those who have left the narrow path who will find themselves devoid of joy, devoid of peace, and wanting to find the place of fellowship in Me they walked away from. The path that seems easy to them now will be seen to be a hard path indeed, and they will find themselves reaching out for what they once had with Me and reaching for the joy they so desperately need. There is great joy in knowing Me well and great joy in our fellowship, where it is easy to receive.

Knowing Me more brings greater joy, greater peace, and great strength indeed. Knowing Me well as Father is the place of great joy and great, great security. Joy abounds in these places of fellowship with Me, and it is in these deeper places in Me that My joy becomes yours indeed. I take great joy when you freely receive through our fellowship, and knowing My joy, as your Father, is a joyful place of fellowship indeed.
