

The Lord's Present-Day Speaking

PT100312 – Mar 12, 2010
I Am the One Who Helps You

I never tire of encouraging you. I never tire of helping you. My nature is revealed in this, for I am the One who gave you your Helper. This is My love for you.

I never grow weary of your heart trying to grasp the understanding of things. I never grow weary of you reaching for Me over and over again for the same things. This is My fellowship with you—I never refuse you, for if you come to Me, I am there for you.

I am patient and kind and merciful, more than you would ever have words to describe, for My love is limitless—it has no end. I DO have more for you. I DO have a place for you that is beyond the things that seem to prevent you from having more of Me. Just don't stop giving Me more of you. This is the avenue to more of what belongs to you, which is the fullness of My life in you.

Do you know that as you make use of My Spirit and allow Him to pray My mind through you that you are giving Me more of you? And as you take My words I have given you and let them feed you that you are giving Me more of you? As you take time to worship Me and let your spirit commune with Me, you are giving Me more of you. Each moment you give to Me is what I need to help you. The more of yourself you give to Me in these things, the more I am able to come and help you. I am always willing to help you, and the willingness will never end.

I am always willing, and I never tire of you. I am delighted in every moment you give Me, for this is our fellowship and this is how I help you. I am the One who helps you.