

The Lord's Present-Day Speaking

I Require That You Believe in the Finished Work

Surely I present you holy and without blame, says the Spirit of Grace. For I am presenting My work, My finest work, when I made you the new creation that you are. It is My great joy and honor to present you to Him, for you are accepted in the Beloved, you see. And all the joy that I have had with Him for eternity, you will now experience in this hour, and then you shall walk in My glory. You will walk in the power and the demonstration, for My Father, says the Spirit of Grace, will confirm the Word of His inheritance that all men may know that the Father's house is open to all.

Come up; come up; come up. I require of you, says the Spirit of Grace, that you believe in the finished work. I perfected you, and now I accept you.

Come before Me now in that offering of perfection, and I will fill you with fullness. And that fullness will come, bring light, illumination, alignment, healing and deliverance to you and those around you—to this city, to this nation and to the nations.

For out of My temple the waters are ready to flow from the right side of the temple that is within you, for all of this place is in you. For My Kingdom is in you, says the Spirit of Grace, and from the right side, from the right hand and all those who sit there with Me, the waters will flow. First to the ankles and then to the knees, to the waist, says the Spirit of Grace. Overhead shall you go in the river of life, and I will turn it to the dead sea of humanity. And all who are dead will live again, says the Spirit of Grace.
