My Judgments Will Save Many

There are judgments that are coming. Prepare your hearts so that you will see the way I see. Some of the judgments will not be a surprise, but some will amaze many. Always remember, these things are based on men's hearts, and I know the hearts of all mankind.

My judgments will save many. When My judgments are released in the manner of which I am speaking, it will be what is needed to enable those who have been "full steam ahead" in their flesh to slow down enough to see things with a new attentiveness to Me. Others, who have moved further and further away from Me, will instead soon be coming home to Me.

The same as a child who is released to his own ways to taste the fruit of his doings, so will many judgments be. They will wonder why My hand doesn't intervene, when in fact, My intervention had already come as opportunity after opportunity to hear Me and choose Me. My intervention this time will be giving them the opportunity now to come home to Me, before the indulgences to the flesh cause the ruin of their own lives and many, many others.

Media will be an avenue I use for scores of people to hear Me, to see Me and to choose Me. It will be a great opportunity for the ones who have sped up in the ways of the flesh to slow down, stop, and see the truth that is in Me. Media will be a tool I use to save many, including those who have taken off on their own paths and have departed from the narrow path of My way, which leads to the true riches found in a life full of Me.

Those who will be judged have filled themselves up with themselves instead of Me. They know I am the One who is God, but they have avoided the narrow way because a loss of self must take place to gain more of Me. They have walked in more of their own ways instead of more of Me. Great will be the fall of some who have embraced themselves and encouraged others to follow them instead of following Me.

To those who will hear: Love not your life, and take up the life that is in Me. My way is narrow, but it is full of Me.
