There Is Coming the Time

Rejoice and be glad, for I am lifting something up and you will be part of it. So rejoice and be glad, for it is coming time—the time that you are going to get to see the things that you have heard about and the things that have been promised. There is coming the time.

There were some things being moved here and moved there, and you probably wouldn't understand it anyway, but these things had to be, had to be changed before He could move like He is going to move. So whatever it was, it is in transition now.

A little clearer—there are a couple of major things that had to happen, had to happen, and then for some reason, then He could do the outpouring we are looking for. And I think that these major things are not just to do with us, but outside of us. So we sure are getting close.
