Operating With a Boldness and Confidence Inside

I don't move one part forward without moving the other part. When I do move a part forward, that means the other part is within range of being moved forward. But rest assured, you are about to see things that you have not seen before. But, then again, you are going to rest in an anointing and operate in a place that you have not known before—oh, this one is in picture form—with a boldness and all confidence inside of who you are and what He has done and what He will do becomes resident in this move.

Because you overcame the fear of approaching somebody out there who is sick, walking along with a limp leg, saying [to him], "Excuse me, sir, but I have been born again and Jesus is my Savior, and He said we can lay hands on the sick and they will recover. I would like to pray for you if you will let me." And you pray for him and then you think about it [as] he runs off with a good leg—how's he going to tell his friends [what happened]?

But I saw you and heard it. That's where you are heading if you want to go.
