PT121014C – Oct 14, 2012

This Is Not Religion—This Is Life and Family

Some of you look and you think, “Hmm? What kind of order is this [in] the service?” Well, I would say this to you that when exhortation begins to take place, when I begin to exhort, why would I exhort over something that you may never use? And when I exhort, why wouldn't I exhort concerning the problems that most of the people have who are present? Do I not know your mind? Do I not know where you are walking?

At these times, when I exhort—exhort can be a relative of prophecy and prophecy, a relative of tongues—but when I exhort, I will take things about you, and I will direct the prayer and the counsel and the direction for you to receive an answer. Saying things that are irrelevant to your lives and probably never will be relevant, what purpose would that serve? Am I not in your midst to fellowship with you? This is not religion—this is life and family.
