I Have My Gladiators

It wasn't exactly "hope" He said, but it was that He lives in anticipation of the time when He will get to pour Himself out in all that He is. For I seek these times of salvations and signs and wonders, and desire them even more than you. For why did I do the things I did through the generations and the centuries and the millenniums if all of this wasn't available that I am offering you now?

Did I die that people would not be saved? No, I died for not only you to be equipped, for not only you to receive the Holy Spirit; I died that I could have Myself a people who would believe in Me and would help Me harvest the rest [of the people], for there are "mansions" waiting for you that you have not thought of what they really are. But you will see when this is over, for many will say with no regret, but [some] with regret, "I wish I would have known then."

It is not being held back from you. I hold no good thing back in its timing, for these things I desire. And some of you are getting close, for you who really belong to Me—every part of you. All of you who love Me, I will see you there. I love you, but I do have My gladiators, and they will face the devil down and you will see great, great incomings of the peoples. So rejoice and be glad. These things will happen partly in your days.
