

Present-Day Speaking

PT120926 – Sep 26, 2012

Open Your Hearts Wide to Receive

My love is coming, and I am going to reach into places of unbelief that have been surrendered to Me but are not yet seeing like I see. My love brings peace, healing and much more strength in Me and will greatly increase your confidence in Me and who you are in Me.

I am the One who loves you and My love is abounding. There are places in Me that are being reached for, and this is enabling Me to come with much love, much peace and much healing, and the result will be a new walk of strength in Me. You will see things like I see, and your walk will be different indeed.

In this next wave of My love, there will be much restoration and healing, for this is central to what you are entering into in Me. You will taste and see that I am good, and the result will be a greater understanding of My love and the life you have in Me. Not only will these things be understood to a greater degree, but your daily walk will reflect these things.

Position yourselves for more of Me. Position yourselves for more love, for I bring these things freely to all who will receive. Great change is what I bring for those who will receive. Stay strong on the path of fellowship with Me and the truth this brings and open your hearts wide to receive.

Great will be the change My love brings. Open your hearts wide to receive. As you draw near to Me, I will be there waiting joyfully, expectantly—treasuring every moment you give Me, for I see what you do not yet see and I see what you are entering into in Me. Great will be the change I bring for the hearts who are reaching for more of Me.

I will be removing things I have been uprooting, and great will be the restoration and peace I bring. The love you find in Me will far outweigh anything the enemy brings to resist these things, and your standing in Me and your joy in Me will carry you past your enemy. You are established in Me and I am your Victory in all things. Get ready to receive what I bring.

Let your hearts be expectant and strong in your fellowship with Me, and together, we will see great things. Great will be the increase of joy and strength in this next place in Me. Open your hearts wide to receive much from Me.

Receive, receive, receive, for great will be the change in this next place in Me. It will not be without resistance from the enemy, but I have already made the way for your victory. I have already made the way for you to be able to receive. So prepare your hearts and receive, receive, receive.