

The Lord's Present-Day Speaking

You Are Well Able to Conquer

If you could trust Me and see that you really have been trained for this time, if you were able to grasp it, I would take you over—over into the fields of harvest, over into areas where you have not been, areas you have always wanted to go to. So spend time with Me and listen to My heart to give My Spirit permission to convince your heart that this is your time and that you are well able. For you are well able to do it.

You are well able to step forward and conquer things you have never conquered before. Continue to stay in My Presence but, at the same time, don't think that it will be years and years before I will be able to use you.

There are so many desperate, so many desperate people. And the enemy again tries to bring the false, to bring deception, therefore, stand up and declare the truth. Stand up and declare the word of the Lord for this time and for this season.

The small plants that are growing up—plants of revival and of the desires of My Spirit—the enemy wants to come and destroy these. But I always watch out for My little ones. I am well able to finish what I started. So follow Me and you will give hope to many. You will be able to lead people in the right direction in a healthy way on a sure foundation—the rock that will outlast every battle and every storm. You are well able.
