Square Your Shoulders and Stand

I can hear the heart of God, the salute of Heaven to all who have been standing and giving their time and energy and their will to intercession and to stand in the gap and to the obedience to the will of God when you have felt nothing, when you have seen nothing, when all was pointing contrary to the answer, that it seemed the most unproductive thing that was happening. I can hear the Spirit saying that there has been much movement that has not been seen with the natural eye. For in the Spirit there has been shifting. There has been change.

There have been things that are building. There have been foundations that have been laid, and it was all necessary. It was all needed. It was all a piece of the part. And it was very, very important for it to happen in order to get to that next place with what God wants to do.

Where there is no foundation, nothing can be built. And the foundation-laying stages take time, take obedience—through thick and through thin. And the weariness in well-doing that has made war against the saints, God is saying: Stand; square your shoulders; stand. Square your shoulders and stand and do not relent, for you cannot habitually sow into the spirit and not reap life everlasting. It is impossible to habitually sow into the spirit and not reap life everlasting.

Continue; stand; for that which I have been building, that which I have been teaching, that which I have been instructing, that which I have been laying, I have been doing it with a purpose. I have been doing it with My intentions and My plans, and they will come to pass. So I say: Stand; stay faithful. Don't relent. Don't give up. Don't look to the right or to the left. Don't get discouraged.

Though the devil brings clouds and clouds and clouds of feelings of hopelessness, stand on My Word. Stand on what I have said. Stand on your personal blueprint. Stand on everything that I have said about you and everything that I have promised you, because I am the One who has told it to you. And if I told it to you, I did not lie, and I want it to come to pass, and it shall. So stand. Give yourself to Me.

Continue to be obedient, because the ripples of change are about to be experienced by many. And the fruit is going to abound that will not decrease, it will only increase and will be much.

Acts 20:32 And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

Galatians 6:8,9 For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. 9 And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.
