Times When You Will Have to Stop and Wait

You will have many opportunities, and you have already had them, but you will see that even more is coming where you will have the temptation to follow after the things of the flesh. But to go where I am taking you, it has to become a reality in your life that no matter what is happening around you, your Spirit guides you, leads you, takes you by the hand, and you following after Him down the path that I illuminate, down the path that I show.

There will be times when you will have to stop and wait and look for the light of the path that I am illuminating. For when I am not lighting a path before you, it is a time to stop and say, "Where am I, and which direction am I to go?" because in following this, there are times when temptation has overcome some—temptation has led you to a dead end, and you have wondered in your heart, "Is it really working? Is it really worth it? How can I know really where to go?"

There have been so many times you would say, "But I followed You, Lord. I did what You said, but yet it didn't work out for me." And I would say to you My little sheep, My lambs, those whom I love, never forsake listening and following and hearing My voice, for I will lead you in a way that you will not fail. Do not be deceived, for there have been times that, yes, you have been stopped; yes, it seemed as though things did not happen, but I can assure you, My promises are yes and amen. My promises are true, says the Lord.

Do not be deceived. Do not allow the enemy to tell you this is not working, for I say to you there is a leadership that I am bringing, and I have already brought to this body, and this is a time for you to look within. This is a time for you to grab a hold of that which I have placed within you and to follow the light that I illuminate before you. And if you think you cannot see the path, just look to your brother, look to your sister and see that I am taking a body to a place that I have promised.

I am taking a body to a place of revival, a place of an outpouring, a place where My Spirit is free to do what I said I will do. So do not be deceived. The enemy has not stopped you; he has not led you down the wrong way. You continue to follow Me, for when the temptations of the flesh come, you know what to do. You know what to do.
