

The Lord's Present-Day Speaking

PT030917B – Sep 17, 2003
He Cannot Love Himself in You for You

The day that you search for Me with all your heart, the day that you love Me with all your hearts is the day that you will find Me. For even as My grace is poured out, I can help you with My standing with this and I can help you with My standing for receiving that and I can pick you up out of the mud and brush you off and trade your standing for Mine. I even can trade off your weaknesses for Mine and help you along the path.

But he who searches for Me with all his heart is he who turns to Me with the nature that I have given him, and within that nature is the capacity to love Me. And you who will go from where you are now to that place—to love Me is something that I gave you in the [new] nature and it is one of those things that I cannot—He cannot love Himself in you for you.

Did you get that? He can't, He can't love Himself [in you for you]. In other words, this cannot be replaced by grace. This [love] has to come from you in a work that He has done in you.