Your Hope Must Be in Me Alone

In My plan for your life, it is important that you decide now that there is no cost, there is no price that can be paid for your willingness to obey Me—that you give up everything and you make that determination now. Today it is important that you make that determination at all costs—at all costs, you will follow Me into your calling, that you are willing to not let offense or hurt or wounds or lack, persecution or tribulation or nakedness or peril or the sword stop you from believing in Me and believing that I believe in you enough to lead your steps. This is what I am asking of you today.

It is important, today, that you make that mark in your life so that I am free to walk you into wonderful, wonderful, wonderful things—things you know not of, things you do not see, things that man has not seen for centuries who followed Me and walked with Me.

How I wish I could show you to entice you, but then, I would override your will. Your walk with Me must be built on relationship—that you trust Me—and not that I give you opportunity or hope in anything else. Your hope must be in Me and Me alone.
